Michael Jackson—a myth, a legend, a mystery—his person and his music still hold us under his spell. Why? Who was he? That is just what the protagonist Chirelle wants to find out. She meets Jackson by chance, knows next to nothing about him except what the tabloid press has written about him. Spiritual talks develop between her and Michael, in which he tells about his life from his perspective. So on the one hand, this book is fiction—as regards to the fictional protagonist— on the other hand it conveys deep truth, because the facts that are reported about Michael Jackson were researched and provided by sources who knew him well personally. This is an emotional biography of Michael Jackson, gripping, thrilling, moving—told as a novel, told in a way that allows us to come close to this gifted artist and philanthropist in a compassionate and understanding way, and which illuminates his life, his tragedies, his suffering, and his love. A thought-provoking book, a book that changes perspectives. Walk in Michael Jackson's shoes for a while, try to understand, form your own opinion. Michael Jackson—a unique life, a unique career, a unique destiny. ... but his character is developed so elegantly and beautifully that at the end of the book I was weeping for a MJ I hadn't shed a tear for when he actually died. The book captivated me Reviews: ....First, I was never a Michael Jackson fan.... but If even a fraction of the fragile, wounded, trusting, loving soul described in this book lived in the heart of the man in who's honor it was written, shame on me. Shame on us all. ....much better than any book I have read and I own about 30books and read all from cover to cover
