The tinsel and baubles are packed away, and the festivities are over for another year, but Hannah can't forget the mysterious stranger who fell into her world on Christmas Day. She flings herself back into normal life in a bid to get him out of her head, which means dating other men and having fun with her sister, Gina. But just as she's getting back on track, fate throws him into her path once more. And this time it results in far more complications than a burnt turkey.

Meanwhile, Gina, is creating problems of her own. As if a messy divorce isn't enough, she grows closer to Ross, the local farmer's son. Hannah knows her sister is not going to be popular when the relationship becomes public, especially with Ross's doting parents or, indeed, Jess, Gina's teenage daughter, who is far closer in age to Ross than Gina is herself.

Things are about to get very, very messy in Hannah's neat little world…
