The Liars' Club: A Short Book of Tall Tales (Volume 2) B. Naquin

Circumstances lead a thief to steal a dead cat. Gravity proves a harsh but philosophical mistress to an unlucky Vietnamese hod carrier. An elderly lady convinces the courts to dismiss her speeding ticket with a story that casts her in an entirely different light. An author loses his completed manuscript to a waitress, a homeless man, and a monkey.

These are the stories so wild and far-fetched that they cannot possibly be true. They are our urban legends, or at least tall tales in the process of becoming legends. They happened to a friend of a friend of a friend. They’re the stories of The Liars’ Club and they can’t possibly be true—or can they?

A mix of funny, touching, and disturbing stories with unexpected turns and twist endings, this is a compilation of tales presented to author Bob Naquin as the truth. Naquin has his doubts, but passes them on to you to judge—with a little added poetic license of his own. After all, a tale grows with the telling, and the best stories have a life—and truth—of their own. Even if they never happened.
